

BVNA Braves 120ft Water Tower in aid of the Charity of the Year 'British Hen Welfare Trust'

On Sunday 1st May, BVNA President Sam Morgan along with Association Manager Angela Mariconda and Education Manager Lisa Brett braved the landmark water tower in Harlow to raise money for the BVNA Charity of the Year the 'British Hen Welfare Trust'.

The team of three made their way up inside the tower, climbing the stairs and ladders before reaching the 120ft summit and starting their descent.

Luckily for the team the weather was kind that day and the sunny, but scary, view was appreciated by the time they reached the bottom!

If you would like to a video of the event please visit YouTube and search for 'BVNA Abseil'.

The Just Giving Page is still open for sponsorship if you would like to donate. All proceeds go directly to the charity www.justgiving.com/BVNA1
